

Suggested Student Pathways through High School Mathematics

The above pathways should be provided to students and their parents when preparing to register for high school mathematics courses. Exceptions to this guideline should involve careful discussions with the student, his or her parents, guidance counsellors, and teachers.